(2) In the case of the dialectic, it is by force of philosophical activity that God appears as God. If we want to know God as God, then God must appear in some way to us, and in the sense that we can speak of God, the appearance must be an appearance of God. The dialectical appearance of God as God (3) To say that the dialectic represents God in that sense in which God appears to us is the same as to say that God appears to us in that sense in which the dialectical order is an order of appearance. (This is evident from the fact that the dialectical order as such has no transcendence.) God as the dialectic. (4) It is the dialectical order as such that reveals God as God. 5) At the same time as the dialectic as the order of appearances, it is also the dialectical order as the whole that reveals God as the whole. God as the whole. (6) This is the sense in which God reveals himself to us. The whole of the God who shows himself to us in the dialectical order. This is the meaning of the fact that God is "wholly" what he is. We are able to understand the nature of God in this sense, because in the
