Molecular evolution of high-mobility group box protein 2 in migrating songbirds. High-mobility group box proteins 1-10 (HMGB1-10) are abundant non-histone nuclear proteins with well-studied, diverse functions in a wide variety of eukaryotic cells. They are divided into three types based on their sizes and structures: HMGB1/2/3, HMGB4/5/6 and HMGB7/8/9/10. Previous studies showed that HMGB2 and HMGB3 contain a "box A" domain and a "linker region" between their DNA-binding and acidic domains. We investigated the molecular evolution of HMGB2 in singing species (Anser cygnoides, Coturnix japonica and Alauda arvensis), which migrate long distances and have the appropriate environment and cellular physiology to cope with extreme thermal stress. The alignment of the total deduced amino acid sequences indicated that most HMGB2 genes in these species were conserved in the "box A" and "linker region", and that the "box B" domain was also well conserved in the "box B" domain. Phylogenetic analysis of the "linker region" of HMGB2 showed that the HMGB2 of the Anser and Coturnix species were grouped into one subclade (called the "flying clade"), while the genes of the Alauda species were grouped into the other subclade (called the "ground clade"). This result indicates that the HMGB2 genes of Alauda species are distinct from those of singing species, and they might have been evolving since divergence from these species.

CPJ calls on Azerbaijani government to end prosecutions and harassments of journalists This is the CPJ's first statement on the mass arrest of journalists (New York, March 29, 2017) -- Azerbaijan's national security agency, the National Security Ministry, has at least 18 journalists in its jails. Since December 2015, the authorities have impeded at least 20 journalists from covering news, sending one to a penal colony. The Azerbaijani authorities should immediately release the detained journalists and ensure they can freely conduct their work. "Authorities have stepped up their
