We are very excited to be announcing that FIFA 22 introduces "HyperMotion Technology," a set of AI enhancements powered by the unique insights from 22 real-life professional footballers who performed a complete, high-intensity football match in motion capture suits. The resulting insights are taken directly from the real-life player's movement and will allow you to design tactics that improve your chances of finding the open areas and scoring the goals that you want. We are confident that they will make your matches a lot more enjoyable – a feeling that comes from watching professional football players run around in motion capture suits for two hours. Now the 22 unique insights are available to use in your game. We hope you enjoy them. In-Game Commentary Using HyperMotion Technology: The in-game commentary during the match is accompanied by the introduction of unique voice-overs from real-life professional footballers. The commentary can be turned off, or the sound can be changed to another language or music. HyperMotion Blurring and Depth of Field: Three technical improvements based on real world football are applied to your game. Each player is tracked in-game, which records the exact position of your players, from the position of your goalkeeper to the position of a second striker in a defensive position. Fans will be able to see that the movements of the 22 real-life professionals used in HyperMotion technology are in-game and impact the depth of field. The opacity of a player's movement is controlled in the game. We have added realism through the Post Processing visual effects of softening and blurring players on the pitch and protecting the player in the virtual environment to provide you with a clearer image and a more realistic game. AutoSave AutoSave technology has been adjusted to accommodate the depth of game mechanics in FIFA 22. We have adjusted the times at which you will save your game. We have extended the saving times in some game modes to ease the pressure to carry over from game to game. Additionally, we have balanced the saving times between the game modes so that there is a consistent saving time across the game modes. We have also adjusted the allocation of save slots so that players will have more time to save their games. We hope this will enable you to enjoy playing the game for
