Cebas FinalRender 3.6.0.1.New York (CNN Business) The Dow just closed 1,321 points lower — the largest point loss in history. The decline is the steepest percentage drop for the Dow since 1931. The Dow had closed down about 8 points earlier in the day, losing more than 300 points. The selling was broad-based as well, with all 11 major sectors suffering big losses. The S&P 500 dropped just over 4%. The Nasdaq Composite fell almost 4%. Even beaten-down Apple shares plunged more than 8% after the company slashed its guidance for the next quarter. The Nasdaq is down 9.6% so far this year, the S&P is 8.7%, while the Dow is off 8.6%. The S&P 500 index has lost more than 7.6% this year. The Dow has now fallen 7.8% in 2017, the S&P 500 has fallen 10.3% and the Nasdaq is off 7.6%. The plunge followed a mixed day for the markets that began with a worrying earnings warning fromand then a strong report from. "The market has a habit of hitting the skids in the afternoon, and it's getting kind of weird to watch," said Gene McGillian, head of market analysis at Tradition Investments. "The S&P has every technical problem in the book." Markets were plunging early, with the Dow down 3,402 points or about 15.6% at 7:56 a.m. ET. That wiped out all the gains for the day and left the Dow down 7,697 points, or just over 16%. By the time the Dow closed down, it was losing more than 300 points. That was the steepest single
